- AHL provides an important platform for aspiring Australian representatives and acts as the 'stepping stone' for hockey's future international stars.
- The Canberra Lakers were one of six teams to compete in the first season of the Men's National Hockey League (MNHL) in 1991, a competition played over a two-month period.
- The Canberra Strikers joined the Women's National Hockey League (WNHL), one of the seven states to compete in the 'Stix Series' from 1993 to 2001 before the league evolved in 2002 to become the Australian Hockey League (AHL)
